Media Consumption Investor™

Continuously monitor media usage patterns and preferences among affluent investors

Continuous Data Collection

Substantiating ad spend is difficult when you are focusing on a specific, hard-to-reach audience. Knowing where and when affluent investors are consuming media helps asset managers justify the millions of dollars spent on media budgets every year. Ads running on the platforms affluent investors use at the times they use them will increase ad efficacy and ROI.

Media Consumption Investor captures affluent investors' ongoing use of and preferences for all types of media. Easy-to-use dashboards enable subscribers to identify the most frequently used and preferred properties across more than 100 TV networks, print publications, websites, mobile apps, radio, social media sites, streaming services (video and audio) and podcasts. Subscribers can view how, when, where and on what devices affluent investors consume various types of media throughout the day. Updated monthly, Media Consumption Investor provides valuable data for firms to build effective, multichannel affluent investor media plans.
